FOURTH WORLD CUP GOLD FOR COX IN DEER VALLEY

Britt Cox has won her fourth World Cup gold medal in Mogul Skiing in the Dual Moguls event in Deer Park, Utah.

Following her Bronze in the individual mogul skiing world cup event just two days ago, Cox maintained her career best form to win gold again and make it five podium finishes out of the last six World Cups.

Her gold adds to another huge weekend for Australian winter sports, after Lydia Lassila's Aerial Skiing win and Belle Brockhoff's Snowboard Cross gold yesterday.

Cox, who retains her yellow bib as the worlds current number one on the FIS standings has remained focused this entire season.

"I didn't think it was going to pan out this way this season, I've just been focused on every event that's coming but it's awesome to win again," Cox said.

"The course was a lot more challenging tonight than it has been all week but my family got to see me win for the first time which is really special."

It was also a landmark night for Brodie Summers, who reached a World Cup podium for the first time in his career by claiming the Bronze.

Speaking after his win in the Small Final, the 23-year-old shared his excitement.

"I'm so stoked right now, I was just having so much fun tonight and now I'm really on top of the world," Summers beamed.

Summers raced against fellow Australian Mogul Skier Matt Graham in the Eight Final on his way to the podium, with Graham finishing 11th overall.

"It was just great to ski with my boy again, he had the tough line in that dual and I didn't really know what was going on but he put up a really good fight," Summers said.

Nicole Parks was the best placed of the remaining Australian skiers finishing 8th, with Krystie Yin (12th), Jakara Anthony (19th), Claudia Gueli (26th) and Madi Himbury (29th).

In the Mens, James Matheson finished 20th with Cooper Woods-Topalovic (24th) and Rohan Chpman-Davies (39th).

The next event on the tour takes our athletes to the Olympic test event in Korea on February 10.
